REENTRY SUPPORT

After an offender is assessed and determined to qualify for transfer to a THU, recommendations are made for individualized reentry planning, based on unmet needs. Most offenders do not have the most crucial materials for successful reintegration, such as identification documents, dependable transportation, housing, and health services. RSOs are centrally located in an SCI, providing workshops, reentry support, and a comprehensive case management system for streamlining the reentry process. All of these services are also offered in the THU.

Reentry staff ensure that each individual has the tools, services, and ID documentation they need to live independently in the community, creating customized Reentry Portfolios and connecting the offender with community agencies who can help.

REENTRY SERVICES

Reentry support includes numerous services, many of which are available through a referral to the Bureau of Community Corrections (BCC) and can continue after offenders are released:

- Housing Assistance
- Replacement/Processing of Identification Documentation
- Mental Health
- Outpatient Alcohol and Other Drugs (AOD) Treatment
- Day Reporting
- Family Reunification
- Domestic Violence
- Sex Offender Treatment
- Mentoring
- Workforce/Employment

WHAT IS A THU?

Transitional Housing Units (THUs) house qualified, parole-ready offenders in a designated area of an institution in order to best prepare them for release to its surrounding counties. THUs target individual need areas, strengthen reentry foundations, lay the groundwork for success, and further help to reduce recidivism.

THUs provide the tools offenders will need to live day to day within their communities, and reentry support services are provided in the THU for every individual about to be released. A THU allows those who meet required eligibility criteria to receive even more individualized, needs-based support from within a residential unit reserved for this purpose. THUs and Reentry Services Offices (RSOs) function as a collaborative effort with the PA Department of Corrections (DOC) and the PA Board of Probation and Parole (PBPP).

BENEFITS

A THU is uniquely different from most general population housing units and provides numerous added benefits:

- Progress monitoring, Unit Team reviews, and customized Reentry Portfolio.
- More opportunities for an individual to participate in services and workshops that would otherwise be unavailable.
- Offers enhanced, needs-based programming and addresses unmet needs.
- Specialized vocational services to target job-related needs.
- More services from community agencies and organizations.
- Reentry Parole Agents serve as part of offenders' unit teams, which increases support of reentry goals.
